

Home-Based Applicants

Europa has always maintained a policy of recruiting the best people regardless of their location, provided they can meet exacting standards. Please be aware however that if you applying for sales development or research roles we are unlikely to offer you a full time home-based role until you have proven yourself over several successful campaigns, so you should be prepared to work on a self employed basis until such a point.

We also prefer to recruit and develop staff interested in a long term employment with Europa – reflected by our low staff turnover. Hence please be clear about your long term plans where possible.

If you are looking for home based freelance marketing work please call us first. If you are looking for home-based sales development/research/telemarketing work please submit a CV. Also ask yourself the following questions and be prepared to address them when you contact us:

- Are you looking for full time or temporary work?
- What are your reasons for wanting to work from home?
- If freelance, how much time available and what do you need to earn?
- What experience do you have of working from home in similar roles?
- What is your sales or telemarketing experience overall?
- What levels of technology knowledge do you possess? (e.g.: highlight expertise in typical solutions areas such as IT infrastructure; software; enterprise apps; services; security. Also mention any technical accreditations you may have)
- Level of PC skills/MS Office competence?
- How well equipped is your home office? (Separate office? PC spec? Software versions? Broadband connections? Security software?)
- If you are freelance please be prepared to sign our NDA and to make us aware of any other work commitments
